

TRANSIT VISA

When leaving the U.S., if your U.S. visa has expired, you may need a transit visa to pass through countries where your plane will land on the way to your destination. If you do not have a transit visa, and it is required, you will not be allowed to board the plane and leave the U.S.

Here are a few websites to help you determine if you will need a transit visa and how to obtain one if you will be passing through one of these countries:

AUSTRALIA:

<http://www.immi.gov.au/visitors/transit/771/index.htm>

GERMANY:

http://www.germany.info/relaunch/info/consular_services/visa/countrylist.html

RUSSIA:

<http://www.russia-embassy.com/transitvisa.html>

SCHENGEN COUNTRIES (most European countries):

<http://www.immihelp.com/visas/schengenvisa/airport-transit-visa.html>

SINGAPORE:

http://www.mfa.gov.sg/home/idx_visasFor.html

PRC and INDIAN NATIONALS traveling through SINGAPORE:

http://www.visitsingapore.com/publish/stbportal/en/home/getting_here/visa_free_transit.html

UNITED KINGDOM:

<http://www.immihelp.com/visas/nonustransit.html>

If the country where you will be landing on your way from the U.S. to your destination is not listed above, please check that country's website for transit visa information.